

Manaheart

Time spent meditating and studying slowly gathers into a heart of light.

Create account

Sign in

HOW IT WORKS

A slow ritual in three parts

I

Practice gathers into a heart

Every session you log, whether it's a quiet sit or an hour with a textbook, adds a little mana. Once five hours have gathered, they settle into a heart that beats softly at the centre of the screen.

II

Circles form around it

As the hours keep adding up, rings of light begin to orbit the heart, up to five of them. Each one draws itself in slowly, like a line traced in the dark.

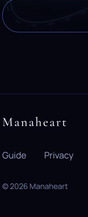

III

Steady practice, then the next rank

Practising most days keeps the circles stable, while long gaps leave them flickering. When all five hold still, they condense into a stronger heart and a new rank begins.

THE CONSTELLATION

A night sky that fills in over time

Hours of meditation light the stars of Mind, study lights Lore, and coming back regularly lights Rhythm. Nothing announces a new star. It's just there the next time you look up.

What Manaheart leaves out

- There are no streak flames, so missing a day won't put anything out.
- Nothing is scored, ranked against strangers or traded for points.
- The app stays quiet, apart from one daily reminder that only arrives if it's switched on.

It's a log of your practice and a heart that grows with it, and that's all it needs to be.

Begin with a single session

Ten quiet minutes is enough to see the first sparks gather.

Create account

Sign in

© 2026 Manaheart

Manaheart

Time spent meditating and studying slowly gathers into a heart of light.

Create account Sign in

HOW IT WORKS

A slow ritual in three parts

I

Practice gathers into a heart

Every session you log, whether it's a quiet sit or an hour with a textbook, adds a little mana. Once five hours have gathered, they settle into a heart that beats softly at the centre of the screen.

II

Circles form around it

As the hours keep adding up, rings of light begin to orbit the heart, up to five of them. Each one draws itself in slowly, like a line traced in the dark.

III

Steady practice, then the next rank

Practising most days keeps the circles stable, while long gaps leave them flickering. When all five hold still, they condense into a stronger heart and a new rank begins.

THE CONSTELLATION

A night sky that fills in over time

Hours of meditation light the stars of Mind, study lights Lore, and coming back regularly lights Rhythm. Nothing announces a new star. It's just there the next time you look up.

Over the months, the shape of the sky ends up looking a lot like the shape of your practice.

What Manaheart leaves out

There are no streak flames, so missing a day won't put anything out.

Nothing is scored, ranked against strangers or traded for points.

The app stays quiet, apart from one daily reminder that only arrives if it's switched on.

It's a log of your practice and a heart that grows with it, and that's all it needs to be.

Begin with a single session

Ten quiet minutes is enough to see the first sparks gather.

Create account Sign in

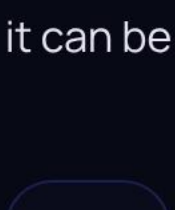

© 2026 Manaheart

Guide

Last updated 8 November 2026

Manaheart is simple once it's running, but a few of its ideas are new. Here's how each part works.

On this page

The heart

Every minute logged as meditation or study becomes mana. For the first five hours, the mana gathers as faint sparks in the middle of the screen.

At five hours it settles into a heart that beats slowly, and from then on it's there each time the app opens.

Logging a session

There are two ways to log. Begin session starts a focus timer, and the time is added when the session ends. Log manually is for practice done away from the app, where you pick meditation or study, set the length and add a note if you like.

Every session is listed under Sessions, where it can be edited or deleted.

Circles

Past the heart, the hours start drawing circles around it, up to five in all. Each new circle traces itself in a little more with every session until it closes and begins to orbit.

A stable circle turns cleanly and evenly.

An unstable circle flickers and wobbles a little.

A forming circle is an arc that is still being drawn.

Steady practice and missed days

Practising on most days keeps circles stable, and the Rhythm row on the home screen shows how the last seven days went.

After a long gap a circle starts to flicker again, but nothing is lost. A few steady days will settle it, and there's never a flame to go out.

Condensing and ranks

Once all five circles are stable, the heart can condense. The circles fold inward, the heart grows denser and brighter, and a new rank begins with room for five more circles.

The ranks run from Apprentice through Adept, Magus and Archmagus to Sage. Each one has a page in the Grimoire, which opens from the rank title on the home screen.

The Constellation

The third tab is a night sky that lights up over time. Meditation hours light the Mind branch, study hours light Lore, and regular practice lights Rhythm.

Bright stars are already lit, faint ones are next, and the dimmest are still a long way off. Tapping a star shows what it takes to light it.

Mage aesthetics

When the first circle forms, the heart can take on a style of its own: Elemental, Arcane or Spirit. A style only changes colours and textures, and it can be switched in Settings at any time.

© 2026 Manaheart

Privacy

Last updated 8 November 2026

Manaheart keeps very little about you, and it never sells or shares what it keeps. This page sets out exactly what that is.

On this page

What we collect

- Your email address, plus your password stored as a secure hash.
- Each session you log, meaning its type, its length, when it happened and any note you add.
- Your settings, such as the reminder time and mage aesthetic.

What we don't collect

There are no advertising trackers, no third-party analytics and no location data. Manaheart doesn't read your contacts, calendar or anything else on your device.

How it's used

Your data is used to run the app and for nothing else. It draws your heart, fills in your sky, sends the daily reminder if it's switched on and lets you sign in on other devices.

Where it's kept

Data is stored on encrypted servers and travels over encrypted connections. A small number of providers help host the app, and they may only handle the data on our behalf.

Exporting and deleting

Every session can be downloaded as a CSV file from Settings at any time.

To delete your account and everything in it, write to privacy@manaheart.example and it will be gone within 30 days.

Changes and questions

If this policy changes in a way that matters, a note will appear in the app before the change takes effect. Questions are always welcome at privacy@manaheart.example.

© 2026 Manaheart

Terms

Last updated 8 November 2026

These terms cover using Manaheart. They're meant to be read, so they're written in plain words.

On this page

Using Manaheart

Manaheart is a personal tracker for meditation and study. It's there to support your own practice, and it isn't a medical or mental-health treatment.

Your account

Keep your password to yourself, and get in touch if you think someone else has signed in. You need to be at least 16 to create an account.

Your sessions and notes

Everything you log stays yours. We only use it to run the app for you, as the Privacy page describes.

Fair use

Please don't try to break, overload or reverse-engineer the service, or use it to store anything unlawful.

Changes to the service

Manaheart will keep changing as it grows. If a feature you rely on goes away, or these terms change in a way that matters, there will be a note in the app first.

Our responsibility

Manaheart is provided as it is. We work hard to keep it running and your data safe, but we can't promise it will always be available or free of mistakes.

Ending things

You can stop using Manaheart and delete your account at any time. We may close an account that breaks these terms, and we'll explain why if we do.

Contact

Questions about these terms can go to hello@manaheart.example.

© 2026 Manaheart

ON THIS PAGE

- The heart
- Logging a session
- Circles
- Steady practice and missed days
- Condensing and ranks
- The Constellation
- Mage aesthetics

Guide

Last updated 8 November 2026

Manaheart is simple once it's running, but a few of its ideas are new. Here's how each part works.

The heart

Every minute logged as meditation or study becomes mana. For the first five hours, the mana gathers as faint sparks in the middle of the screen.

At five hours it settles into a heart that beats slowly, and from then on it's there each time the app opens.

Logging a session

There are two ways to log. Begin session starts a focus timer, and the time is added when the session ends. Log manually is for practice done away from the app, where you pick meditation or study, set the length and add a note if you like.

Every session is listed under Sessions, where it can be edited or deleted.

Circles

Past the heart, the hours start drawing circles around it, up to five in all. Each new circle traces itself in a little more with every session until it closes and begins to orbit.

A stable circle turns cleanly and evenly.

An unstable circle flickers and wobbles a little.

A forming circle is an arc that is still being drawn.

Steady practice and missed days

Practising on most days keeps circles stable, and the Rhythm row on the home screen shows how the last seven days went.

After a long gap a circle starts to flicker again, but nothing is lost. A few steady days will settle it, and there's never a flame to go out.

Condensing and ranks

Once all five circles are stable, the heart can condense. The circles fold inward, the heart grows denser and brighter, and a new rank begins with room for five more circles.

The ranks run from Apprentice through Adept, Magus and Archmagus to Sage. Each one has a page in the Grimoire, which opens from the rank title on the home screen.

The Constellation

The third tab is a night sky that lights up over time. Meditation hours light the Mind branch, study hours light Lore, and regular practice lights Rhythm.

Bright stars are already lit, faint ones are next, and the dimmest are still a long way off. Tapping a star shows what it takes to light it.

Mage aesthetics

When the first circle forms, the heart can take on a style of its own: Elemental, Arcane or Spirit. A style only changes colours and textures, and it can be switched in Settings at any time.

© 2026 Manaheart

ON THIS PAGE

- What we collect
- What we don't collect
- How it's used
- Where it's kept
- Exporting and deleting
- Changes and questions

Privacy

Last updated 8 November 2026

Manaheart keeps very little about you, and it never sells or shares what it keeps. This page sets out exactly what that is.

What we collect

- Your email address, plus your password stored as a secure hash.
- Each session you log, meaning its type, its length, when it happened and any note you add.
- Your settings, such as the reminder time and mage aesthetic.

What we don't collect

There are no advertising trackers, no third-party analytics and no location data. Manaheart doesn't read your contacts, calendar or anything else on your device.

How it's used

Your data is used to run the app and for nothing else. It draws your heart, fills in your sky, sends the daily reminder if it's switched on and lets you sign in on other devices.

Where it's kept

Data is stored on encrypted servers and travels over encrypted connections. A small number of providers help host the app, and they may only handle the data on our behalf.

Exporting and deleting

Every session can be downloaded as a CSV file from Settings at any time.

To delete your account and everything in it, write to privacy@manaheart.example and it will be gone within 30 days.

Changes and questions

If this policy changes in a way that matters, a note will appear in the app before the change takes effect. Questions are always welcome at privacy@manaheart.example.

© 2026 Manaheart

Settings

ON THIS PAGE

Using Manaheart
Your account
Your sessions and notes
Fair use
Changes to the service
Our responsibility
Ending things
Contact

Terms

Last updated 8 November 2026

These terms cover using Manaheart. They're meant to be read, so they're written in plain words.

Using Manaheart

Manaheart is a personal tracker for meditation and study. It's there to support your own practice, and it isn't a medical or mental-health treatment.

Your account

Keep your password to yourself, and get in touch if you think someone else has signed in. You need to be at least 16 to create an account.

Your sessions and notes

Everything you log stays yours. We only use it to run the app for you, as the Privacy page describes.

Fair use

Please don't try to break, overload or reverse-engineer the service, or use it to store anything unlawful.

Changes to the service

Manaheart will keep changing as it grows. If a feature you rely on goes away, or these terms change in a way that matters, there will be a note in the app first.

Our responsibility

Manaheart is provided as it is. We work hard to keep it running and your data safe, but we can't promise it will always be available or free of mistakes.

Ending things

You can stop using Manaheart and delete your account at any time. We may close an account that breaks these terms, and we'll explain why if we do.

Contact

Questions about these terms can go to hello@manaheart.example.

 © 2026 Manaheart

PATTERN · READING LAYOUT

One layout, two top bars

Guide, Privacy and Terms share one page. Only the top bar changes: signed out it shows the name and Sign in, and signed in it shows the app navigation with a way back to Settings, where these pages are linked.

DESKTOP · SIGNED OUT

DESKTOP · SIGNED IN

The Settings icon stays lit, and a "Settings" back link sits above the page title.

MOBILE · SIGNED OUT

MOBILE · SIGNED IN

On mobile the bottom tabs are hidden on these pages, since they open from Settings and lead back to it.

TYPE FOR LONG READING · DESKTOP / MOBILE

Page title
Cormorant 500
64 / 48

Guide

Last updated
Manrope 400 · 13

Last updated 8 November 2026

Intro
Cormorant italic
25 / 22

A few of its ideas are new, so here's how each part works.

Section heading
Cormorant 500
34 / 28

Condensing and ranks

Body
Manrope 400
17/1.75 · 16/1.7

Once all five circles are stable, the heart can condense. The circles fold inward and a new rank begins.

List

- Each list point gets a small mana dot.

Text never runs wider than 660px. On desktop the "On this page" list sits on the left and marks the current section with a mana line. On mobile it folds into a single row under the intro. Guide illustrations sit in an 88px margin tile on desktop and a 60px tile beside the heading on mobile.

Settings

ACCOUNT

Email — you@example.com

Change password >

PRACTICE

Daily reminder
A quiet nudge if you haven't practised —

Reminder time — 8:00 pm >

Default session length — 25 min >

MAGE AESTHETIC

Locked
Choose Elemental, Arcane or Spirit when your first circle forms.

DATA

Export data
Every session as a CSV file

ABOUT

Guide
How the heart, circles and sky work >

Privacy >

Terms >

Sign out

Settings

ACCOUNT

Email you@example.com

Change password ›

PRACTICE

Daily reminder
A quiet nudge if you haven't practised that day
at 8:00 pm

Default session length
Used when you begin a focus session
15 25 45 60

MAGE AESTHETIC

Locked until your first circle forms
Then choose Elemental, Arcane or Spirit. You can change it here any time after.
Elemental Arcane Spirit

DATA

Export data
Every session as a CSV file
Export

ABOUT

Guide ›
How the heart, circles and sky work

Privacy ›

Terms ›

Sign out